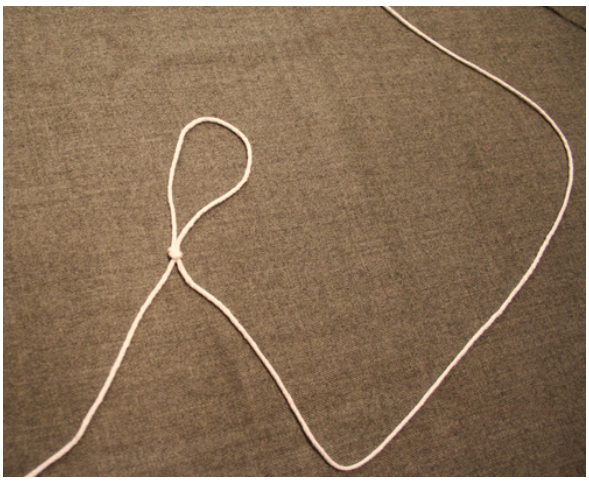
Crochet Loops

By: BurdaStyle

http://www.burdastyle.com/techniques/crochet-loops

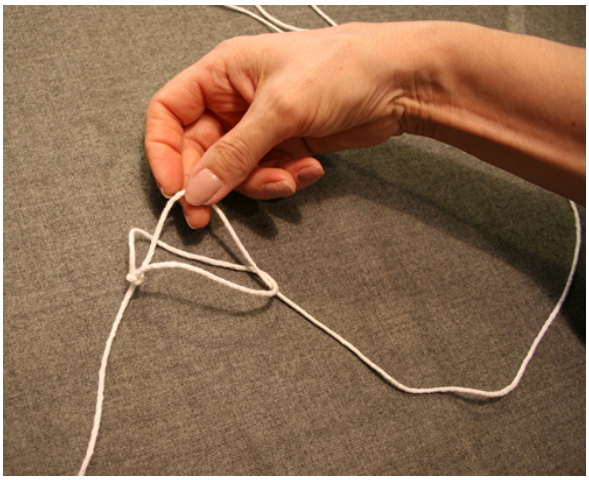
You can use regular thread to make simple crocheted loops for button or belt loops, like we did for the Paola dress. These loops are a snap to make, and are more dainty than using spaghetti for loops. Here, we demonstrate with a big twine for clarityâs sake, but in real life you should use the matching thread for your garment.

Step 1



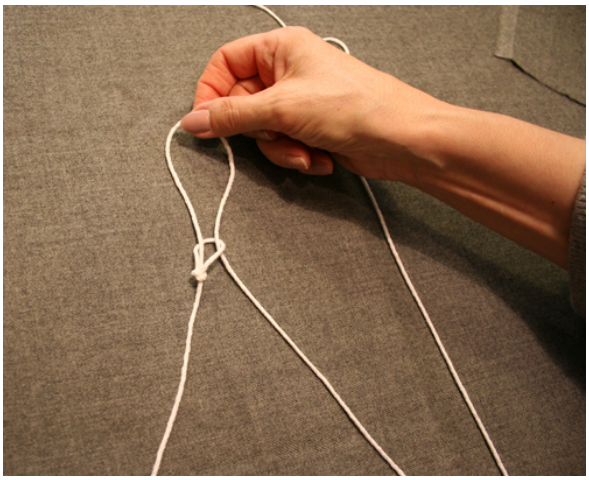
First, make a slip knot.

Step 2



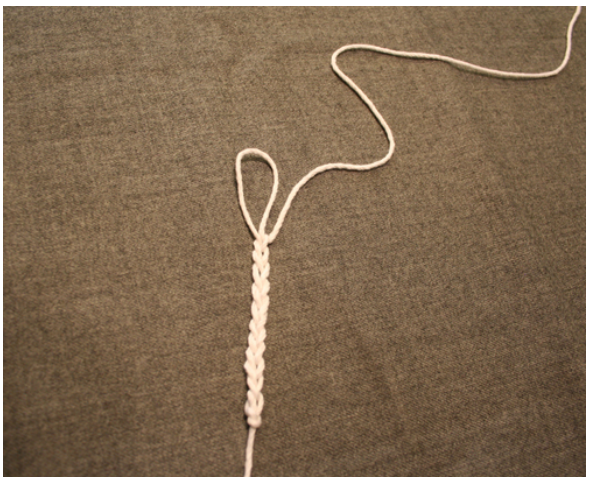
Bring the long tail up through the loop.

Step 3



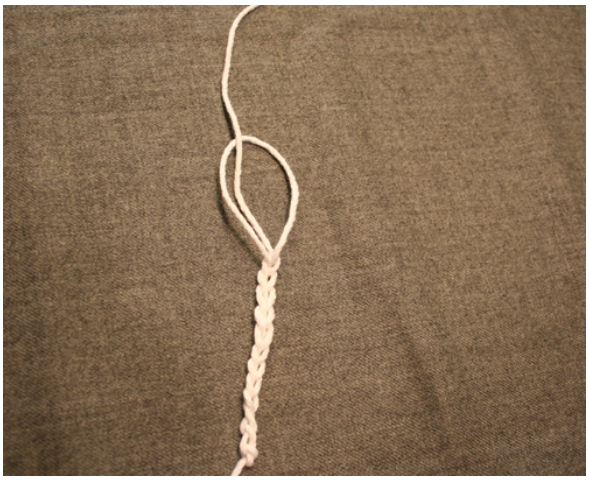
Pull the short tail, tightening the first loop to nothing. Now, the long tail creates a new loop.

Step 4



Repeat repeat repeat, until you have enough length for your needs, plus seam allowance.

Step 5



To tie off, put the long tail through the last loop, without creating a new loop. Pull it taught.

Step 6

Now, use in your garment as you would other loops.