Anna top

By: IchiGoGirl

http://www.burdastyle.com/projects/anna-top

This material used to be my great grandmother's shirt-dress (she died two years before I was born). My grandmother kept it in her stash in the basement (a treasure-grove) for nearly 30 years before I found it, brought it home, and made new pieces of clothing from it. I love the material, you can't seem to find material of that quality nowadays (well, you CAN, but you have to go to Japan first…). I'm glad I have a grandmother who knew better than to throw things with potential away! I made the pattern from my own basic pattern.

Materials

Printed cotton, ribbon

Step 1 — Download pattern

I'm sorry but I haven't had the time to make any instructions yet. I'd suggest looking at similar free patterns here, and follow their instructions.
I'll try to add some as soon as I find the time!